Days of Grace.

The new law of Pennsylvania, abolishing days of grace, went into effect January 1, and is as follows:

Section 1. That on all notes, drafts, checks, acceptances, bills of exchange, bonds or other evidences of indebtedness, made, drawn or accepted by any person or corporation after this act shall take effect, and in which there is not expressed stipulation to the contrary, no grace, according to the custom of merchants, shall be allowed, but the same shall be due and payable as therein expressed without grace.

Section 2. That all such notes, drafts, bills of exchange, checks or other paper falling due on Sunday or a legal holiday or day observed as such, or any half holiday, shall be deemed to be due on the next secular business day thereafter. Provided, however, that all such notes, bills of exchange, drafts, checks, etc., shall not be protested on any Saturday, but on the next secular or business day.

Section 3. All laws inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

Section 4. This act shall take effect and be in force on the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-six Unfair Assessments.

The Returns Show That Some Tax-payers are Subject to the Most Shameful Injustice.

The Secretary of Agriculture of Pennsylvania states that from careful investigation in the different counties the tax rate upon actual values varies from 6.46 mills as a minimum to 13.33 as a maximum. He says: "But one explanation can be given for this variation; the assessment must have been made unevenly and unfairly. Some farms must have been assessed at about their full value and others at about half."

The Secretary then gives a table of 17 farms selected at random to emphasize this discrepancy in just one county. All should have been under one system of taxation, but evidently favoritism and prejudice crept in. Theoretically, in this county all the farms should have been assessed at just one-half of their actual value, says the secretary. However, one farm worth $12,000 is marked down to $1,600, and one worth $6,000 is put at only $1,326. On the other hand one farm worth $5,500 is assessed at $5,482 and another worth only $6,000 is assessed at $6,915, more than its actual value. In other words, some farmers are paying three times as heavy a tax as their neighbors.

The Secretary of Agriculture adds:

"Some of these owners were non-residents and were not there consequently to object when the assessed values were put on. The whole system is one of guesswork. In 1891 the total number of farms on the roll of the Department of Agriculture, concerning which definite data had been obtained, was 8081. Their total value was $1,525,929; total taxes paid on the above, $440,317.96. Last year on the list there were 17,719 farms. Total value of them all, $109,525,963; taxes paid on them, $826,006.63. For the last three years the total number of farms is 24,734. Total value of them $151,529,458, and taxes paid on them $1,259,847.17. These figures show for themselves and show the injustice of the present method of farm taxation.

Farmers' Associations.

The forthcoming annual report of the State Department of Agriculture will show that there are in this State 101 agricultural societies, which may be divided into two classes, one of which does not hold any exhibitions, but instead thereof meets monthly for the discussion of agricultural topics. The report says that from some unknown and unexplained cause farmers have lost their interest in agricultural exhibitions, and that the attendance has very materially fallen off within the past ten or fifteen years.

The indications are that the farmers, institutes held by the Department of Agriculture and that numerous grange meetings have something to do with the neglect of agricultural exhibitions by farmers; their desire to meet together and talk is satisfied by the inexpensive farmers' institute and grange meeting, and they have no other desires in this direction.

County and Neighboring.

REVS. P. E. HEIMER, of New Oxford; G. W. Welsh, of East Berlin, and E. D. Miller, of Hanover, appointed at the meeting of the Reformed Classis Monday to install Rev. M. J. Roth, the new pastor of Trinity Reformed church, Hanover, have selected Sunday evening, January 12th, to perform their duties. Revs. T. J. Barkley, F. S. Lindeman and J. H. Hartman were appointed as a committee to consider the project of erecting another Reformed church in Hanover.

HON. WM. MCSHERRY resigned as a Director of the Littlestown Saving Institution recently, and Mr. Henry Forry, of near Hanover, was elected to fill the vacancy. The bank declared a dividend of 2 per cent. payable January 1st.

ABRAHAM GARDNER was arrested by Patrolman Schley and Sheriff W. B. McIlhenny, of Adams county, Pa., Wednesday a week to answer the charge of obtaining a horse from James A. Ocker, of Littlestown, Adams county, Pa., by means of false representations.—Baltimore Sun.

THE heavy storm on Thursday evening a week, did great damage in the vicinity of Hanover. The large carriage and store house on the Hanover Agricultural Society's grounds, was blown down, entailing a loss of about $500 to the building and $250 on the contents, which consisted of the flying horse equipments, two sulky barrows, one road cart, one track sulky and a carriage. The last three articles are owned by Thomas Johnson, the horse trainer. His loss will be about $200. The building is a complete wreck, and will have to be entirely rebuilt.

THE Hagerstown & Potomac street railway company has purchased of Superintendent J. P. Ranney of the Chambersburg & Gettysburg railroad the rails of the latter road which had been laid between Caledonia and Wolf's Hill tunnel. There are over four miles of track in the purchase.

THE following truthful paragraph is taken from an exchange of a recent date: "A school teacher says the pupils who have access to newspapers at home, when compared to those who have not, are better readers, better spellers, better in punctuation and better grammarians, and read more understandingly and obtained a practical knowledge of geography in almost half the time it requires others.

J. MITCHELL STOVER, the largest peach-grower in the Blue mountain belt, recently made a deed of trust for the benefit of his creditors. Frederick F. McComas, of Hagerstown, was appointed trustee. The petition states that he has sustained heavy losses in his business and directs that his property, consisting of several hundred acres in peach trees and several canning factories, be sold to pay his debts. The estate is insolvent.

Carrier's Address.

January 1, 1896.

The Carrier sat in the editor's chair, his feet on the editor's desk. With a timid rap the "devil" stumbled in. Gazing with horror at the Carrier and his feet, he said: "Better not let the bosses catch you."

CARRIER. "Oh, we have given the bosses their walking papers. They have resigned for the day; the ranch is turned over to the boys and I am editor in chief and staff."

DEVIL. "Where do I come in?"

CARRIER. (Twirling an exchange into a cone and ramming it over the devil's head) "Why you are our fool of a devil."

DEVIL. "What does all this mean?"

CARRIER. "Old Mr. Year is almost dead for want of more time to live."

DEVIL. "That's so. He's dead again."

CARRIER. "1896 must have a good send off."

DEVIL. "Well, I'll give him a good ringing in."

CARRIER. "Fifty-two weeks have I delivered the COMPILER in which the proprietors have given the news and had their say. The people reading have quoted the COMPILER as saying this and that. Now I, who have carried the editor's news and thoughts to the people, propose to air my thoughts and have my little say."

DEVIL. "Say, ain't that chair too big for you?"

CARRIER. "Be still. Take that glue pot in your left hand, those scissors in your right. When I say paste, daub, and when I say cut, saw, and we will air ourselves, if we have to use some one else's vocabulary to do it in."

DEVIL. "On with your little say."

CARRIER. "Grandpap says in his days the town ran along and no one knew whether it was being run or not. But now, holy smoke, the meetings of our town fathers are all noise. The town is being run with wind. They pare electric light bills. There is a kick. They paste on the parings.

DEVIL. "Scissors and paste."

CARRIER. "The electric railroad kept on receiving everything in sight until it had to have Receivers to continue the receiving business."

DEVIL. "You mustn't have had any passes."

CARRIER. "Those who had no favors to give got no passes. But let us hope that 1896 will bring a new management, one that gives as well as receives, with a through road to Washington and a big boom, and with it a telephone to all points in the county."

DEVIL. "And passes for the editors and boys."

CARRIER. "1895 brought us a National Park. When it gets here with all its Telford avenues, towers, markers and etceteras and a small army of men to look after it, it will be great, great."

DEVIL. "Won't it be a long time coming."

CARRIER. "On that day you will be an ex-devil, but we ring in for 1896 a good big slice of the Park, and in passing we doff our caps to Hancock, the Superb and our own Gallant Meade in bronze."

DEVIL. "What about politics."

CARRIER. "The COMPILER and our very most highly esteemed contemporary have had lots of fun during the year sassing each other. We suggest that the opposition keep their paste from getting so sour and their scissors ground."

DEVIL. "When will the Roosters crow?"

CARRIER. "We regret that the COMPILER roosters were too small for use when the Democrats carried the county last fall, and we promise full fledged roosters next time, fed on our own sour paste and scissor filings."

DEVIL. "Here goes another turn of the crank."

CARRIER. "Here goes our congratulations for the new Seminary building, for the new athletic ground, for the dozens of new houses and improvements, for Dannie, our miniature fireman, for our new high school department and for the many other things 1895 gave us. For 1896 we ring in more houses, more improvements, perhaps a new high school building, a monument in the square and other good things we know of but won't tell."

DEVIL. "You must be getting your second wind."

CARRIER. "For a touch down. Thank you. The COMPILER bosses, boys, devil, and carrier wish every one a Happy New Year the whole year through."

DEVIL. "Aint there going to be any poetry with this."

CARRIER. "The poetry has gone with 1895, gone where the woodbine twineth with "Gentle Spring, Anne," and "The Snow, the Snow, the Beautiful Snow." I'm an up to date end of a century carrier with something new."

DEVIL. "Say, haven't you overlooked something?"

CARRIER. "No siree bob, not in this year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-six, on the day of the year when the carrier is king. Pass the hat and with it our thanks for the dimes, quarters, half dollars and dollars and other small change."

Venezuela's Clear Title.

It Was There That Columbus First Trod the American Soil.

It was on the coast of Venezuela that Columbus first set foot upon the American mainland. This was in 1498, on the occasion of his third voyage in quest of a new world. By virtue of discovery and the conquest of the Indian tribes which up to that time had been its only inhabitants, the country passed into the possession of Spain, and that nation retained undisputed control until the Venezuelans revolted in 1810. Venezuela had then grown to be quite a power. Its people were rich and brave, and, although of Spanish descent, rebelled against the exactions of the mother land. Long years of war followed, and while the victory was virtually won in 1821, Spain was able to delay recognition of the independence of the country until 1845. With independence from foreign control came internecine strife, growing out of the desires of various aspirants for political power and place, and there was a series of revolutions and civil wars lasting almost to the close of 1870. But during all this time no country, except England, thought of questioning the right of the Venezuelans to the possession of the land. The title is a clear one, so lawyers say. Spain obtained it by the discovery of the country and subjugation of the natives, and it passed to Venezuela itself when Spain, at the end of a long and bloody war conceded independence to the colony and a republic was established.—Chicago Tribune.

Political Dodging.

The President asked Congress for the right to issue a long-time, low-interest gold bond with which to borrow gold to protect the reserve and commence the payment of our legal-tender demand floating debt. The House responded, first, with a Tariff bill calculated to throw the business of the country into new confusion; and, secondly, with the authorization of short-time, low-interest bonds, payable in time, which may or may not be advantageously used in replenishing the gold reserve, and which expressly stipulates against the cancellation of the greenbacks when paid. Even these measures, which in no sense respond to the recommendation of the Executive or the needs of the Treasury, it is admitted stand no chance of passing the Senate. The Administration, upon which is thrust the duty of protecting the Federal credit and maintaining the parity of our paper and silver currency with gold, is thus in all likelihood to be left without other option than to borrow gold for the purpose, under the authority conferred in the Resumption act, or to accept the alternative of repudiation and panic.

IT takes a genius to do nothing and not waste time at it.—Truth.

The Senate and the Nation.

The people of this country have set their faces against the free coinage of silver. Whatever vitality and prospects the idea of free silver once had it has no longer. The people have learned what it means, and it is ended.

In the House of Representatives at Washington free silver is dead beyond the possibility of resurrection. In the White House the President is implacably fixed against it. Whosoever his successor there may be, and of whatever party, among his heresies free silver will have no place.

But in the Senate at Washington there stands a group of men numerous enough to control that branch of the Federal legislature, and these men, for reasons personal to themselves, demand peremptorily the free coinage of silver. They know thoroughly its status, as above expressed, and are keenly alive to all the conditions that attach to it with the Executive, with the lower House, and with the people of the United States. In ordinary circumstances their impotence would excite only derision and contempt, but as the masters of the Senate in a time of grave public concern they demand serious consideration.

For the most part these Senators represent only their own personal interests. The constituencies of many have vanished from behind them. The terms for which they were elected have outlasted the beliefs and conditions under which they came to the Senate, and the people whose choice they were are now actuated by wholly different wishes and convictions. Many never represented the interests of their constituencies, and frankly, or at least with little concealment, acted in behalf of silver mines in which they were owners or stockholders.

So long as the question of free coinage was open and debatable, and public sentiment in respect to it was undetermined, the position of the controlling body in the Senate was defensible. The personal and private interests of the several Senators were ostensibly secondary to a problem of national interest. To-day the circumstances are wholly changed.

The silver group in control sees the nation in a grave emergency. The Treasury is embarrassed. The welfare of the whole public demands that immediate relief be afforded by simple and obvious legislation. The silver Senators, with no seeming consciousness of the enormity of their position, announce that only when their personal demands shall have been complied with can the will of the people be satisfied.

The Senate to-day is organized on the basis of blackmail of the whole people of the United States! Let the people speak.—N. Y. Sun.

Official Lawlessness.

The Allegheny county grand jury has returned nine true bills against W. C. Moreland, ex-City Attorney, and W. H. House, ex-Assistant City Attorney of Pittsburg, for violation of the act of March 31, 1860, which declares that "if any officer of this Commonwealth, city, borough, county or township thereof shall enter into any contract or agreement with any bank, corporation or individual by which said officer is to derive any benefit, gain or advantage from the deposit with such bank, etc., of any money under his control by virtue of his said office, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding $1,000 and to undergo imprisonment not exceeding one year." The charges against Messrs. Moreland and House are that they did receive interest upon city money deposited with not less than three Allegheny county banks.

If the common belief is not greatly at fault State, county and city treasurers and other officials have been quite generally violating this law, the existence of which they were bound to know or stand convicted of total unfitness for their positions. John Bardsley, a City Treasurer of Philadelphia, is now serving a term in prison, not for a direct violation of this act, but as a direct consequence of its violation, which was discovered by the failure of two banks in which he had deposited public moneys, upon which he expected to draw interest. If he had turned the money collected for the State promptly over to the State Treasurer the failure of the banks in question would not have involved him in any loss or exposure, and his reputation as an honest man would have gone unchallenged.

The Bardsley and Moreland and House cases are significant illustrations of the deadening of the popular conscience on the subject of an honest service of the public. Bardsley was punished and Moreland and House may be, not because they were sinners above other officials in this respect, but because they were caught in violations of the law. Others equally guilty have doubtless profited immensely by violation of this and other laws restricting public officials and escaped discovery or conviction. The deplorable part of the matter is its revelation of a low standard of official morality, a standard which has effected others besides fiduciary officials, as has been quite recently demonstrated in this city by the issuing of a writ of ouster against a Councilman who held his seat in plain violation of law.

As a matter of fact we have strayed from the original idea that public office is a public trust so far that many officials have come to regard a public office as an opportunity for personal gain at the public expense and in violation of law. That such a standard of official responsibility is destructive of all safety and stability in governmental affairs will scarcely be questioned by any intelligent person, and that we must get back to the principle that public officials, above all others, must obey and respect the law, is quite as apparent.—*Phila. THE BICYCLE, WITH ESPECIAL REFERENCE TO ITS USE BY WOMEN.

Dr. Henry J. Garrigues, in the January Forum

If bicycling is an excellent preventive of disease and a promoter of good health, it is of no less value as a remedy for certain pathological conditions. It is not compatible with the limits and nature of a magazine article intended for general readers to enter into details about the treatment of diseases. I shall therefore limit myself to a few remarks. By its effect on respiration and digestion, bicycling becomes a potent remedy for anæmia, that condition of the blood which consists in a diminution of the red blood-corpuscles, and shows itself in pallor of the skin and the mucous membranes. Numerous nervous troubles are relieved or cured by this exercise: such as neurasthenia, or nervous prostration,—a condition usually due to overwork or worry, and in which the normal strength is lost, and the slightest exertion causes fatigue and physical and mental exhaustion. The same holds good in regard to headache, insomnia, and neuralgia. Among the nervous affections benefited by bicycle-riding may also be included that troublesome disease, asthma, a cramp-like contraction of the muscles of the bronchial tubes, which causes a painful sensation of choking. In the beginning of phthisis, where parts of the lung tissue become condensed and less pervious, moderate bicycle-riding is helpful. Many diseases of the intestinal canal—such as dyspepsia, constipation, and hæmorrhoids—yield to the effects of wheeling. A case has recently come to the writer's knowledge in which the stiffness remaining after a fracture of the leg was successfully treated by riding a bicycle.

But if bicycling is a valuable resource in certain diseased conditions, there are numerous others in which it is harmful or should only be indulged in very cautiously. Most acute diseases demand rest, and bid the bicyclist abstain from his favorite pursuit; and many chronic diseases are made worse by riding. Since wheeling considerably increases the rate of the respiratory movements it would be folly for a person with advanced pulmonary consumption to attempt to ride. The heart being whipped unmercifully to work in driving the machine, wheeling should be strictly forbidden in serious diseases of this organ; and persons affected with minor cardiac troubles ought at least never to race or otherwise expose the heart to a fatigue which it is not prepared to stand.

WHEN JOHNNY GETS HIS GUN.

When Johnny gets his gun, look out,
There's bound to be a fuss,
For Johnny is in earnest when
He holds his blunderbuss!
His martial air is wonderful;
His smile upsets all fun,
And things assume a warlike air,
When Johnny gets his gun.

In softer moods our John is calm,
He's sportive, gay and good,
And acts with much propriety,
As freemen always should!
When yachting he will never "load"
His vessel on the run;
But saves his efforts till the time
He wants to load his gun.

He's sturdy on the baseball field,
And football plays with vim;
In cricket, too, he doth excel
And sports afield suit him.
But in the battle van, for right,
He'll make the foeman run;
And, oh, the triumph of that hour
When Johnny gets his gun!

In wild adventure John delights,
He loves to travel, too,
And, when exploring, always keeps
The North Pole up to view!
And, as for loving liberty,
He's freedom's honest son!
And down will go its enemies,
When Johnny gets his gun.

But now he hears the lion roar
In vengeful wrath and rage.
Ah! John has heard that sound before,
You'll read on history's page,
He stood up square at Bunker Hill,
When Freedom's fight begun,
And thousands now will follow quick
When Johnny gets his gun!

Stand back! Monroe once said the word
That makes the nation grand,
And Cleveland gives it emphasis,
A law unto the land!
Stand back! Stand back! A million men
Shout 'neath the Western sun,
And, oh, the gathering of the hosts,
When Johnny gets his gun!

A "HOSS" TRADING STORY.

"Got a new beast there, haint you, Jake?"

"Yes—the best horse I ever owned."

"Don't look very remarkable; s'pose you paid seventy-five or eighty dollars for him?"

"Humph! no matter what I paid. But I wouldn't look at less than three hundred and seventy-five for him."

"Fiddlesticks! Got the spavin in his left hind leg, haint he?"

"Not a spavin."

"Well, his left hip is lower than the other by two inches."

"No, sir. That's all in your eye. He's the best horse I ever owned, and that's saying considerable. Spirited, but gentle—won't bear the whip, though; and perfectly safe for women folks to drive. My wife went to Concord with him last week."

"Indeed!" with an appearance of interest. "Guess I'll get in and try the reins."

Jake Pinkham drew in the reins over the back of the showy looking grey, with a great exhibition of strength, sundry commands to "whoa," and to "be easy," and Tom Berry got into the buggy.

Both gentlemen were notorious horse jockies, and each was continually trying to overreach the other.

The horse went well—finely, in fact. Secretly Berry was better pleased with the animal than anything of the kind he had seen for many a day, and after a great deal of haggling, which would fail to interest the reader, a bargain was struck.

Mr. Berry had a celebrated cow that he was desirous of selling, and Mr. Pinkham happened to want to buy, so a trade was concluded—on these terms: Mr. Pinkham was to give Berry one hundred and fifty dollars for the cow, and Berry was to give him three hundred and fifty dollars for the horse. Berry took the beast home with him, and Pinkham's hired man came down and drove up the cow.

Both were highly delighted with their exchange, and each thought himself the gainer. We shall see which was nearest right.

After tea that evening Mr. Berry, who was quite a fast young man, and very much of a beau, thought he would try his horse. He would ride down Hawley street and cross to Jefferson, for just then he was deeply enamored of a fair milliner's girl on the latter street, and most of his peregrinations set that way.

The animal behaved splendidly. Berry began to think himself the most fortunate man in existence. Just opposite the milliner's window he reined up to speak to a friend.

The horse pricked his ears, lifted his fore feet, and commenced backing. Berry exerted all his skill to subdue him, but it was thrown away. The horse was bound to go back. Down through the gutter—up over the pavement—bang, smash and rattle! and the next thing Berry knew, he was flying through the window of an apothecary shop, scattering the red and blue bottles in every direction. The apothecary flew at him with uplifted pestle, and the assistant pelted the horse with jars and jugs, ad libitum, but the brute kept on with courage undismayed.

A glass screen ran along back of the stove, dividing it from Mrs. Apothecary's private parlor, where that lady was, at that moment, engaged in the very interesting employment of spanking a tow-headed juvenile.

A crash, and the buggy went through, and Mr. Berry was pitched headforemost into the lap of Mrs. Apothecary's sister, who was making her a call.

The elder lady sprang to her feet, and seizing a clothes-pole, was about wreaking summary vengeance on the unexpected visitor, but her sister interfered, and Berry hugged her in recompense. Mrs. Apothecary contented herself with throwing a mug of hot water at the horse, which so enraged the animal that he cleared himself from the buggy, and bounded away into the street.

Berry gave a long-legged youngster two dollars to catch him, which was accomplished after a smart run, and having bidden the young lady who had saved him from fate, an affectionate good night, Berry got into his buggy and started for home, promising to call next day and settle damages.

They proceeded in fine style for a couple of miles; and then upon a dreary heath the horse came to a stand still and refused to budge. Not an inch would he go either backward or forward.

Coaxing and whipping alike availed nothing. Berry got down and pulled him by the bridle, stuck pins into him, pushed behind a. the wagon, but without avail.

An old woman came along with an umbrella. Berry got her to flourish that at him, but he was immovable.

"Yer bound to stand till yer take yer seat, haint ye?" said the ancient dame. "See if this ere don't fetch ye!" and she let him have the whole contents of her snuff-box full in the face.

The effect was astonishing! Berry was laid out on a rock heap—the old woman found herself with a caved bonnet, sitting in the middle of a mud puddle, and the horse was flying home in a cloud of dust.

Berry walked the remainder of the distance, and that night the horse was sent down to him from Pinkham's, whither it had flown.

Meanwhile, Pinkham was greatly elated with his cow, which was a very handsome animal, a deep red, with a white strip in her face, and of the Leicester breed.

Mr. Pinkham's wife was a pretended invalid, and Pinkham had a very pretty girl who acted as a milk maid. Mrs. Pinkham was fearfully jealous of Jenny; and Pinkham stood in mortal horror of his wife's anger, which was more terrible than an army with banners. So he very rarely said anything to Jenny in the house, but when she went to the cow yard to milk, he sometimes stole in and talked over the "might have beens."

The first time Jenny went to milk the Berry cow, Mr. Pinkham happened along just at the right moment, and as Jenny took a seat on a stool beside the cow, Pinkham took another stool and sat down by her. And Mrs. Pinkham was watching them from behind the stone wall.

Up went the heels of the cow in the air—over went the pail; over went Jenny, and over went Mr. Pinkham, trampled beneath the hoofs of the bellowing quadruped, who seemed to consider herself the injured party.

Pinkham was the first to recover, and the instant he did so he flew to Jenny.

"Are you hurt? If you are I'll be the death of that cow!"

Mrs. Pinkham bounded over the wall with a stool in her hand, and laid about her with such effect that the cow fled from the yard—Jenny hid in the haymow and Pinkham, on his knees in about two feet of mud, swore never to speak to any other woman as long as he lived.

The cow proved to be a confirmed "kicker." It was utterly impossible to milk her, and Pinkham's only consolation consisted in the thought, that bad as the cow was, that horse was fully her equal.

A few days afterward he was met by Berry, who facetiously inquired how he liked his cow, and was told that she was fattening for beef. And Berry informed Pinkham that he had put the horse away. And both concluded to make the best of it—considering both had been "sold."

A couple of weeks afterwards a stylish looking stranger, riding a dark chestnut horse, stopped at Pinkham's to inquire the distance to the next village. Pinkham's eye was on the horse at once. A conversation about the beast ensued and the stranger affirmed him to be the best in the State. Pinkham offered to buy him, but the stranger indignantly refused. It was his wife's horse and nothing would tempt him to a sale. This only made Pinkham the more anxious to purchase, and he urged the man to name his price.

"Three hundred dollars! not a cent less!" said the proprietor.

Pinkham considered a moment.

"I'll give it," said he, "on one consideration. I see that you are an excellent hand to crack up an article and get a good price for it; and I want you to do me a little favor. I must take you into my confidence, and you shall not lose by it. You see I traded with a neighbor of mine the other day and got took in tremendously. Bought a cow of him for a hundred and fifty dollars, and the beast isn't worth fifteen! I've got her color changed, from red to brown, and if you'll sell her to Tom Berry—down here a couple of miles—for a hundred dollars, I'll give you three hundred dollars for your nag, and ten dollars for your trouble."

The stranger's eye sparkled, and a curious expression shot across his face. But Pinkham was too eager to outwit Berry, to pay much attention to mere looks.

The stranger agreed to perform his part of the business—received the money, took the cow before him, turned the horse into Pinkham's barn-yard, and trudged off. And two hours afterward, Berry was the owner of the cow he had sold Pinkham, and his pocket was lighter by a hundred dollars.

That afternoon there came up a smart shower. Pinkham went out to put his new horse in the stable, and behold! there stood the identical grey "backer" he had sold to Tom Berry a fortnight previous; he had been colored, and the rain had washed off the paint!

And about the same time, Berry was looking at his new cow, and had little difficulty in recognizing her as the same quadruped he sold to Pinkham!

And that night each of the gentlemen received a note which let the cat out of the bag. They ran thus:

"I have sold the horse to Pinkham and the cow to Berry—and am well paid for doing it. The proceeds are in my pockets. Wouldn't you like to finger them?

JIM BEAN."

The outwitted sharpers pocketed their loss—laughed at Jim's cleverness, and agreed never to trade with each other again.

THE most important function of a school report is to make known the needs of the schools, and the first step toward reforming the lamentable conditions that exist in many of our cities is to have the facts fully set before the public. We have a right to know the worst. Gettysburg, Pa., Tuesday, Jan 7, 1896.

THE ELECTION THIS SPRING

The immediate interests which every citizen has in the township and borough elections should enlist the efforts of every voter to get out a good ticket, composed of men who will give their constituents the best service. Let every voter, then, attend the primary meetings and take an active interest in political affairs so that officers may be nominated with the consent of all and with due regard for the good of the whole people. Every Democrat should help to make the party's nomination and, when they are made, should vote for the ticket straight. It is of vital moment to our county and our party that our party management be in the hands of the party as a whole with the interest of every member back of it.

The elections this year will take place on Tuesday, the 18th day of February. According to the Act of the Legislature of 1893 the nominations by party primaries for borough and township officers and school directors must be filed eighteen days before the election, which will be January 31st and nomination papers fifteen days before the same, which will be February 3d. It is a safe rule not to wait until the last day, but to file the certificates as early as possible.

MOUNTAIN FIRES

Of the enormous loss suffered by timber-land owners in this State fixed at one million dollars yearly by the Forestry Commission Adams county bears its fair share and generally because of carelessness or wilfull maliciousness.

Mountain fires are comparatively frequent in this county, but the cause of them is never discovered, though the loss is generally great. If they are caused by carelessness the culprit is just as responsible as if the act was intentional and the penalty ought to be as severe. It is said that a fire is often started by the dropping of a lighted match after using it to start a pipe or cigar or by hunters lighting a fire and neglecting to extinguish it. If these, or other similar causes, always avoidable start mountain fires an example ought to be made of some one—that the penalty may be appreciated, if not the loss which they may be inflicting on land owners. The report of the Commissioner says that carelessness on the part of hunters and others who make camp fires, as well as on the part of those who are clearing land for farm purposes constitute two important sources of these destructive fires. Fires started out of malice and fires kindled by sparks from locomotives are added to the first two.

The Commissioner places the direct loss—that is the marketable value—of the timber destroyed at one million of dollars, which is doubtless below rather than above the actual figure. He calls attention to the indirect loss in the destruction of growing timber not large enough now to be valuable, but which if allowed to grow undisturbed for forty years, would represent a value of $1 200 000 000. Each year's proportion of this loss would amount to thirty times the value of the merchantable timber destroyed.

In consequence of this condition of affairs an effort is being made on the part of the State authorities to find a prevention of this great and useless destruction. Heretofore what law existed on this subject failed of enforcement because it was the business of nobody in particular to enforce it. With the establishment of a Bureau of State Forestry an agency has been provided charged with the duty of enforcing the law, and the test of the bureau's usefulness will consist chiefly in the extent to which it does enforce it.

Accompanying the report of Commissioner Rothrock is a statement prepared by his clerk, Robert S Conklin, who says "An approximate estimate from reports at hand establishes the fact that in the year 1895 there were about 225 000 acres of woodland burned over occasioning a great loss of valuable timber aggregating fully $2 000 000. Many fences were destroyed and about 5 000 men were engaged a total of about 250 days in extinguishing the fires, representing a wage account to the farming community of about $45 000. The lumbering interests reports have not been received as yet. Twenty buildings were destroyed, among which were several sawmills. Two men and five horses and cattle lost their lives in the fires. Much cut and sawed timber was also burned."

The Commissioner, Professor Rothrock, has not exaggerated the facts in his estimates of this indirect loss, and he might have gone further and added many millions for loss in the depreciated fertility of the soil, for it is well known to those experienced in woodcraft that repeated burning reduces the soil to a state of barrenness. Briers and whortleberry bushes and sweet fern and other stunted shrubs constitute the chief growths upon tracts often swept by forest fires. Nothing of the timber kind is permitted to reach valuable maturity and the land eventually becomes so poor that it will not produce thrifty timber even though protected from fires.

REPUBLICANS AND THE PEOPLE

The determination of the Republican Congress to legislate in favor of the manufacturing classes at the expense of the people in general is evidenced by a remark of Mr Dingley, chairman of the ways and means committee of the House. He said recently that it would be a waste of time to attempt to pass a comprehensive tariff bill at this session of Congress, and so no effort will be made. Not, however, because of a lack of desire to restore high duties but because of the certainty that it would be vetoed by the President. It is a fair conclusion, then, that the Republicans will lose no time in passing such a bill if they should elect a President next November. All that stands between McKinleyism and the people now is Mr Cleveland's veto. When the voters, after years of careful reflection, based upon a thorough discussion of protection, decided that McKinleyism was not to their interest, however much it added to the fortunes of the manufacturers, it might have been thought that the question was finally settled, but the Republicans care not for the opinions of the people.

THE REPUBLICANS CANNOT AGREE

A letter from our Washington correspondent says

"The scrambling among those who want more of the protection pork than the tariff bill which the House passed gives them has not been equalled since the McKinley bill was being made up. It has been and is making life miserable for the Republican members of the Senate Finance committee, which is now trying to decide in what shape the bill is to be reported back to the Senate. The greed of those seeking protection for special lines, at the expense of everybody else, would make the scramble sufficiently disagreeable, but presidential politics have also been brought into it. The McKinleyites declare that the bill as passed by the House is in the interest of Reed's candidacy, and that they will have more McKinleyism put into it, or know the reason why it isn't done. The Democrats are not taking much interest in the bill, although the nearer it gets to McKinleyism the better it will suit them, they believe that the country is as strongly opposed to McKinleyism now as it was when it elected the Democratic House of the Fifty-second Congress and when it elected Mr Cleveland President and gave the Democrats control of both branches of the Fifty third Congress and that the nearer the bill approaches the original McKinley bill the greater will be its effect toward helping to elect a Democratic President next November. Democratic Senators have not agreed upon any programme on the tariff bill, but the general sentiment among them indicates that after putting the party on record against the bill they will place no obstructions in the way of reaching a vote. Even if the bill passes the Senate in a shape to meet the approval of Mr Reed, who is to all intents and purposes the House, it is well nigh certain that it will be vetoed by President Cleveland.

"There has been a considerable change of opinion as to the attitude of England towards the Venezuelan boundary commission, the membership of which could hardly have been improved. Instead of being violently opposed to the commission as many supposed it would be, it seems, from trustworthy information that the British government while not officially recognizing the commission, proposes to unofficially assist it in every way possible to get at the actual facts as to the true boundary between Venezuela and British Guiana."

THE ISSUE OF BONDS

While Congress is dickering with politics the financial condition of the country grows worse. The President has pointed out the right course for Congress to follow, but Congress is seemingly a Republican managing committee, given to looking at the political future rather than to the control of natural affairs for the whole people's benefit. President Cleveland is arranging for another issue of bonds made necessary by the low condition of the gold reserve and the inability of Congress to make suitable laws. Under the head of "Partisanship Run Mad" the Phila. Record says

"To read some of the Republican and semi-Republican journals it would be surmised that the Administration at Washington was engaged at this particular time in a conspiracy to cheat and defraud the people of the United States. They are doing whatever they can to create public distrust at a critical financial juncture. There is an admitted necessity that the gold reserve—upon which rests the security of 500 million dollars worth of circulating legal-tender demand notes and the maintenance of the parity with gold of the silver and silver certificates shall be replenished. There is but one way to secure gold. The incapable Congress refuses to authorize the issue of gold 3 per cents, and gold must therefore be borrowed on thirty-year 4 per cents, payable in "coin" to meet an emergency thrust upon the Government as a result of faulty financial legislation for which the present Administration is not responsible. Popular malediction under such circumstances should fall upon Congress that refuses to come to the aid of the Treasury and not upon the executive branch of the Government which is doing its utmost to sustain the public credit and to prevent business disaster. In the whole history of the United States there has seldom or never been such an exhibition of extreme and malignant partisanship. Can it be possible that underneath this assault upon the Administration there lies a hidden but deliberate attempt to force the payment of public dues in silver and to drive gold out of the country?"

THE NATIONAL FINANCES

The following figures evidence an improvement in the nation's financial condition and indicate incidentally the general betterment of business.

The monthly comparative statement of the receipts and expenditures of the United States shows that during the month of December the receipts cents omitted aggregated $26 288 937 as follows Customs $12 169 172, internal revenue, $12 750 771, miscellaneous $1 368 993.

The expenditures during the month amounted to $25 814 317, leaving a surplus for the month of $474 620. The figures for the first half of the present fiscal year ended December 31 however show a deficit of $15 494 707 as against a deficit of $27 564 465 during the first half of last year, as compared with December, 1894, the receipts for customs show an increase of a little less than $1 000 000, and from internal revenue an increase of about $3 350 000. For the last six months the receipts from customs show an increase over the corresponding period last year of $12 377 000. There was during the same month a loss in the returns from internal revenue of about $5 276 000.

Satolli A Cardinal.

A Grand Ceremony in Baltimore.

The second step in the elaborate ceremony of elevating Francis Satolli, Archbishop of Lepanto, and Apostolic Delegate to the United Statet to the rank of Cardinal, prince of the church, took place in the venerable Cathedral in Baltimore on Sunday.

The ceremony consisted of conferring the beretta, which is the cap worn by priests on ordinary occasions and differing only in the case of Cardinals in that it is red. The preceding steps have been the conferring of the zuchetto, or red skull cap, and the administering of the oath. The remaining step is the conferring of the red hat, which must be done in Rome by the Pope himself within six months from November 30, the day upon which Satolli's appointment was made.

The old edifice in which the ceremony took place, and in which the first American bishop was ordained and the first American priest also ordained, and which is presided over by the only American-born member of the College of Cardinals, was filled to the doors with a congregation which numbered among its members many of the most prominent ecclesiastics, diplomats, legislators, educators and journalists in America. Archbishops, bishops and eminent professors represented the Catholic Church in the congregation.

Judge Ewing, of Pittsburg, who tried the case of Elizabeth N Crumpton, Executrix of Herbert Crumpton vs The Pittsburg Council of the Junior Order United American Mechanics, gave rulings that are important changing as they do the usually accepted interpretation of the obligations of secret societies. The deceased was a member of the Council and the latter refused to pay his death benefits on account of his having failed to pay certain special assessments. These assessments, added to his dues, made the member in bad standing at the time of his death. The Judge in charging the jury remarked that organizations had no right to charge assessments of this kind against members as dues. A verdict was rendered in favor of the plaintiff for $5 375.

The wife of Alexander Geese, a Newville farmer, is incapable of drowning. Last Tuesday, she jumped into Conodoguinet Creek, intending to commit suicide. Mrs Geese weighs 300 pounds and her body would not sink. After floating for three hours she was discovered and pulled out by neighbors, just as she about floating over the falls. When rescued she was almost frozen, but will recover. It was no effort for Mrs Geese to keep her head above water. She cannot swim a stroke, but she bobbed about in the deep water like a cork. She couldn't wade out, as the water was far too deep, and so she floundered about helpless. It was a frightful situation, as the water was freezing cold.

About three years ago Isaac W Raven of Coburn, Centre county, while driving along the Millheim turnpike was thrown from his buggy at a bad place in the road and sustained a broken limb. He brought action against the company for $20,000 damages, and in two trials before the lower court and a hearing before the supreme court was awarded $5,000. The turnpike company refused to pay the amount and to satisfy the judgment the pike was offered at sheriff's sale on Friday. There were no bidders but Raven himself, and he had the option of buying the pike to satisfy his judgment or make a compromise with the company. The sale was postponed until Monday, when a settlement was effected by Raven accepting $3 000 in cash, the company to pay all accrued costs.

RETURNS NOT RIGHT

The inequalities that exist in the assessment of real estate for taxation, says Secretary Latta, and the wrongs that result therefrom, have their parallel in the failure to assess money at interest as required by the laws of the Commonwealth. In 1891 there was returned $579,036,227, in 1892, $590,882,560, in 1893, $607,664,408, in 1894, $616 043,452, and in 1895, $620,020,507. What percentage this amount bears to the actual amount at interest and upon which the State should receive four mills per dollar per annum as taxation cannot be ascertained, but that many millions of dollars of this species of property escape taxation is beyond the slightest doubt. Extreme measures have never been adopted in Pennsylvania to compel complete returns of money at interest but it is admitted on all sides that there is much to do in the way of important legislation and in educating the people of the Commonwealth up to a point of stricter accountability, if not to lift them to a higher plane of honesty and integrity, in order that the tax laws may rest with equity upon all persons.

Venezuela Commission.

President Cleveland last Wednesday announced the appointment of the Venezuelan boundary commission as follows

David J Brewer, of Kansas, Justice of the United States Supreme Court

Richard H Alvey, of Maryland, Chief Justice of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia

Andrew D White, of New York

Frederick R Coudert, of New York

Daniel C Gilman, of Maryland

The commission is regarded among those who had an opportunity to see the list of the names after they were made public, as a very satisfactory one whose opinions and conclusions will be received by the American public with that confidence which the standing of the members of the commission in the public eye inspires.

Justice Brewer and Mr White are Republicans, while Justice Alvey and Mr Coudert are Democrats. Mr Gilman has no politics, but his proclivities are understood to be Republican. The two great parties, it will be seen, are equally represented on the commission, with the fifth member having no outspoken politics. The work of the commissioners will be to examine and collect evidence with a view to determining the true divisional line between Venezuela and British Guiana.

The conclusions reached by the Commission will be reported to the President for his information in connection with any further representations and communications that may be made by the government to Great Britain in connection with the boundary line dispute between the latter country and Venezuela.

The Hand of Death.

Mrs Mary A Boyer

Mrs Boyer, wife of Martin Boyer, of Butler township, died at her home on Sunday, the 22d ult, of a cancerous affection aged 51 years 6 months and 26 days. The remains were buried in the cemetery at Mummasburg on the following Tuesday. The deceased was a daughter of Martin Riftensperger, deceased, late of Tyrone township. She leaves a husband and seven children.

Mr John A Kime formerly of Arendtsville but the last ten years of New Rockford Dakota died suddenly last week of heart failure. He was District Attorney of that place for the last few years, and was aged about 45 years. He leaves a wife and six children. He was a son of the late Peter Kime.

Married at Home.

Last Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock, Miss Mary Elizabeth Lott daughter of Cornelius Lott of Cumberland township and Mr William Boyer, of Arendtsville, were married at the bride's home. The ceremony was performed by Rev Hugh Gilchrist of this place, assisted by Rev D T Koser, of Arendtsville. The ushers were Mr J Kerr Lott brother of the bride, and Mr George Boyer, brother of the groom.

An elegant wedding dinner was set for the large company and was partaken of by about 150 guests. The home and tables were nicely decorated with palms, plants, ferns and cut flowers. It was throughout a pretty wedding.

After taking a wedding trip to Martinsburg, W Va, and other places Mr and Mrs Boyer will reside in Arendtsville.

While the operations of the Main Line show a net decrease of $10,954 65 for the year those of the leased lines show a net increase of $50,307 01, making for the system, an increase in net earnings of $39,352 36.

Hicks' January Prediction

In his forecast for January Rev Irl Hicks said January would come in with storm disturbances disappearing to the east, and high gales with cold wave advancing from the Northwest. About the 4th and 5th a moderating wave will cross the country, resulting in more rain and snow to be followed by a very cold wave from the 6th to the 9th. From the 9th to 13th he says heavy storms of sleet and snow may be expected, a sweeping cold wave following. Reactionary storms about the 14th, with thunder and heavy rains probably to the south. Another cold wave is to follow. From the 21st to the 24th is to be a period of quick extremes of temperature. The month will end in storms as it began.

York County Silver Mine

Recently Jacob Miller, a well-to-do farmer, while digging a well at Freyesville, near York, at a depth of 15 feet discovered a body of earth which he believed to be galena. Mineralogist Demming, of Harrisburg, has analyzed the findings and says that there is $25 worth of lead and $2 worth of silver to the ton in it, much more, he added, than what is mined in many parts of Colorado. The find will be developed, and it is believed the most valuable deposits extend under the city of York.—Hanover Record

Disturbing Church Services

A warning to reckless young people is found in the following:

Warrants were sworn out last Saturday in Lebanon before Alderman K L Miller for the arrest of nine well known young people of Schaefferstown, five men and four women, who are charged with disturbing religious meetings in the United Brethren church at Schaefferstown. Rev J B Daugherty, the pastor, alleges that he was compelled to dismiss the congregation on account of the disturbances. The accused were held in $200 bail each for a further hearing.

Married Fifty Years.

The Anniversary of the Marriage of Hon Ephraim Myers and Wife of Littlestown Fittingly Celebrated. Children, Grandchildren, Great Grandchildren and Many Friends Gather to Extend Congratulations. A Joyous Occasion.

Contributed.—Col Ephraim and Lucinda Myers, (nee Bittinger) celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in their spacious residence, Littlestown, last Wednesday, Jan 1st, 1896.

It was a bright crisp morning just fifty years ago that a happy party of eight could have been seen slipping merrily over the snow on their way to Hanover. Everybody and everything seemed happy. The ceremony was performed by Rev Jacob Albert D D. The groomsmen were Messrs Harry I Myers, of Hanover, Co, W Bittinger and Michael Bender, the two latter now deceased. The bridesmaids were Mrs James H Colehouse, now of Hanover, Mrs Amanda Stouffer, of East Berlin, Mrs Dr Bonnecian, of Los Angeles, Cal, all living.

To-day Jan 1, 1896 fifty years later, we find five of the party of eight gathered together in company with others, in a happy anniversary. Time has left its imprint on the cheeks, has tinged the locks with silvery white, has lacked the elastic step, but has not trifled with the hearts nor subdued the spirit that old life of 1846 burned anew to-day.

Time has wrought many changes since fifty years have elapsed. To-day, instead of the party of eight Col Ephraim and his estimable wife have been blessed with five children, twelve grandchildren and two great grandchildren and those, together with invited guests, numbering in all 125 were to-day gathered together in commemoration of the happy event of 50 years ago.

The programme of the day was carried out as follows: At one o'clock as Miss Lulu E Wire played a wedding march the assembled guests entered the spacious parlor in the following order: First the friends, then the grandchildren forming a circle, then Col and Mrs Myers, followed by their immediate children which completed the circle formed. Then Dr Harry E Gettier A B stepped into the circle and congratulated his grandparents in saying "Men and women were created to co-operate with each other by the performance of different functions. God has assigned to each different spheres, different mental, moral and physical constitutions, especially adapted to them. St Paul says that man is the glory and image of God while woman is the glory of man. In consultation he will bring enough of the wisdom of the serpent which it is for her to supply the harmless dove. God's will brings into the elements in which he is different. We are enabled here to-day to celebrate the golden anniversary of these two persons who fifty years ago to-day stood before the altar and in the presence of God were made man and wife. I in the living exponent of the children, grandchildren and great grandchildren congratulate you that both of us have been preserved to celebrate this auspicious occasion. I ... ship ... that both of you may remain with us many years yet. But when the time arrives for either of you to pass from time into eternity you will receive that welcome plaudit, 'Well done thou good and faithful servant.' I, in the children and grandchildren, in order of age offered their congratulations.

This being over the guests were invited into the large dining room which was tastefully and beautifully decorated with palms, ferns and potted plants. The large tables were exquisitely arranged and adorned with choice cut flowers. All being seated Rev J J Flint asked the blessing. Dr C J Gettier was toastmaster, and by the time the third course had been served, the gentleman in a neat speech paid Mr Mark Weikert of Catering the caterer a fitting compliment for the very excellent and satisfactory manner in which he handled this department.

Mr Harry I Myers the only surviving groomsman was next called upon to bear testimony whether Col and Mrs Myers had really been married fifty years ago. The gentleman assured all that he was witness to the fact that they were married and related some pleasant incidents connected with the event. Dr ... the family physician was next called upon. He responded by saying that all relations had always been pleasant. He spoke of the Colonel's generous nature and well known hospitality. Rev Flint the present pastor and Rev Wire the former pastor were then in order called upon. Each made fitting and appropriate remarks. During the festivities a congratulatory cablegram was received from the ... son-in-law Dr Geo W Stoner ... the U S Marine Hospital service who is now in Pome Italy.

The festivities terminated in the evening in an entertainment given by the grandchildren to the people of the town in the spacious hall on the third floor. The latest and best kindly furnished the music. Refreshments were served in the evening to which everybody was welcome.

STATE FUNDS ARE LOW

If All Debts Were Paid the Treasury Would Be Nearly Empty

The extravagant Republican Legislature was so wasteful with appropriations that the balance in the State Treasury is very low. The amount in the general fund at the beginning of the new year was $2,196,515 11. On December 31, 1891, it was $3,356,671 17. On December 31, 1892 it was $4,850,27 64. On December 31, 1893 it was $3,796,087 73. On December 31, 1894 it was $2,985,328 44.

The amount now in the general fund is not even as great as it appears, for a large sum is due to Philadelphia to be returned for State personal taxes. At this date in former years this amount had already been returned.

If the State were to pay Philadelphia what it owes and would cancel its other obligations, as was done in former years there would only remain in the Treasury $685,000.

THE receipts at the Hanover post office for the quarter ending December 31 last were $2,225 15, a gain of $564 56 over the same period last year, when the receipts for the corresponding three months were $1,905 79.

One of the pleasant incidents of the time, Jan 2d, was a surprise donation visit to the Mountjoy Lutheran parsonage, Rev W G Minnick pastor, by about twenty five families of the congregation and a few families of the M E Church and taking with them substantial tokens of their appreciation of his services amongst them. The visit was so unexpected that the coolness and self possession for which Rev M is noted for, took him not surmising what was going to happen but when he learned that no harm was intended he recovered and the raiders were all admitted, and then the Rev took a look at the oats, about 32 bushels, corn 29 bushels, and then the chicken coops 3 in number, and one turkey and then the sacks of flour and potatoes, sweet and irish, apples, peach and apple butter, 14 lbs butter and the canned fruit of all kinds, 38 lbs of sugar, and a lot of honey and jellies, and many other things. Cash from a member of the M L church, cash from a member of the Reformed church—this was presented by E S Cromer in a neat speech. The forenoon was spent in social enjoyment and all felt that it was good to be there. The whole amount of things given amounted to $42 21.

THE PAPER OF THE PEOPLE
FOR THE PEOPLE AND WITH THE PEOPLE

Honest in Motive
Fearless in Expression
Sound in Principle
Unswerving in Its Allegiance to Right Theories and Right Practices

THE SUN Publishes All the News all the time but it does not allow its columns to be degraded by unclean, immoral or purely sensational matter.

Editorially THE SUN is the consistent and unchanging champion and defender of popular rights and interests against political machines and monopolies of every character. Independent in all things, extreme in none. It is for good laws, good government and good order.

By mail Fifty Cents a month Six Dollars a year.

The Baltimore Weekly Sun

THE WEEKLY SUN Publishes all the News of each week giving complete accounts of all events of interest throughout the world. As an Agricultural paper THE WEEKLY SUN is unsurpassed. It is edited by writers of practical experience who know what farming is and what farmers want in an agricultural journal. It contains regular reports of the work of the agricultural experiment stations throughout the country, of the proceedings of farmers clubs and institutes and the discussion of new methods and ideas in agriculture. Its Market Reports, Poultry Department and Veterinary column are particularly valuable to country readers. Every issue contains Stories, Poems, Household and Puzzle Columns, a variety of interesting and instructive selected matter and other features which make it a welcome visitor in city and country homes alike.

One dollar a year. Inducements to getters-up of clubs for THE WEEKLY SUN. Both the Daily and Weekly Sun mailed free of postage in the United States, Canada and Mexico. Payments invariably in advance. Address

Harper's Bazar IN 1896

The twenty-ninth year of Harper's Bazar, beginning in January 1896 finds it maintaining its deserved reputation both as a Fashion Journal and a weekly periodical for home reading.

Every week the Bazar presents beautiful toilettes for various occasions. Sandoz, Baude and Chapuis illustrate and engrave the newest designs from the finest models in Paris and Berlin. NEW YORK FASHIONS epitomize current styles in New York. A fortnightly pattern sheet supplement with diagrams and directions enables women to cut and make their own gowns and is of great value to the professional modiste as well as to the amateur dress-maker. Children's Clothing receives constant attention. Fashions for men are described in full detail by a man about town. OUR PARIS LETTER by Katharine De Forest, is a sprightly weekly recital of fashion, gossip and social doings in Paris given by a clever woman in an entertaining way.

Both the serials for 1896 are the work of American women. MRS GERALD by Maria Louise Pool is a striking story of New England life. MARY E WILKINS in JEROME, A POOR MAN, discusses the always interesting problem of the relations between labor and capital. Short stories will be written by the best authors.

SPECIAL DEPARTMENTS. Music, The Outdoor Woman, Personals, What We Are Doing, Women and Men, report and discuss themes of immediate interest.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS. Questions receive the personal attention of the editor, and are answered at the earliest practicable date after their receipt.

The Volumes of the Bazar begin with the first Number for January of each year. When no time is mentioned subscriptions will begin with the Number current at the time of receipt of order.

Remittances should be made by Post-office Money Order or Draft, to avoid chance of loss.

EVERYTHING IN THE GROCERY LINE.

WE have lately stocked our store with new and fresh Groceries, but we have on hand a line of articles which are usually found in a grocery store, Glassware, Queensware, Chinaware, Buckets, Washboards, Tubs, a great variety of Dishes, Lamps, fancy Baskets, and other articles which we wish to sell to make room. The new goods you will find cheaper than at most stores and the old goods, some of which have been in stock a few months, some longer, you will find very cheap. We want to start as soon possible with a whole new stock, but to do that we must sell some of that now on hand, and we are selling it at such figures as will suit any one in need of goods in our line.

JANUARY FARM WORK.

THE BREEDING OF SWINE—"BURNING CORN FOR FUEL," AND OTHER MATTERS

The breeds of swine have been injured to a certain degree by using animals for breeding purposes that were not fully matured Experiments made with matured sows and young sows show that the cost of raising pigs from matured sows is much less than from the younger, while the losses of pigs were much greater when the dams were young It has been claimed that liability to swine cholera and other diseases is also caused by the using of immature animals for breeding purposes

The Eastern farmer may be surprised when he learns of the Western farmer burning corn for fuel but he does the same when he feeds his corn to stock, the animal consuming the food to keep warm. It matters not whether the corn is consumed in a stove or by the animal, as it serves the same purpose—that of creating warmth The better the shelter the less corn to be used

All kinds of coarse food can be rendered serviceable by judicious combination of the ration Even cut straw will be eaten if bran and oilmeal are added to it. Fodder can be made acceptable to stock by preparation, and hay may be fed with other foods, in a manner to make the whole a ration which will be relished

Corn is said to be as low as 13 cents per bushel in some localities It is possible that next year there may be but half a crop, and the excess over that required for consumption may bring good prices Farmers who have too much grain on hand with prices ruling low, should endeavor to increase the number of animals on the farm in order to convert the corn into something more salable.

From several sections the report are that smaller areas will be devoted to wheat and oats in the spring No doubt low prices will induce farmers to limit the acreage, but those who are shrewd and who anticipate such a condition will increase their acreage to such crops in order to secure high prices which may result from decreased production

The strawberry plants should be covered with well rotted manure that is free from lumps In the spring use the hoe and chop the manure in, following with the cultivator between the rows. To keep the berries clean mulch around the plants with salt hay or any suitable material, first applying any fertilizer that may be needed

Horses may be cheap now, but the fact that farmers are abandoning the raising of colts should be evidence that a time will arrive when horses will be more in demand and prices higher

The farmer who makes his own sausage knows what he is eating which is more than can be said of his friends who live in cities On the farm there are many portions of carcasses that can be utilized as sausage which effect a saving which is both agreeable and economical

Skill is required on the farm as well as in the factory The frequent advice that young men should go on the farms and not come into the cities is not always advisable The man who has spent his life in the city is not competent to work on a farm and earn the wages that are paid experienced farm hands That wages are higher on the farm than in the cities implies that the wages are only paid to those who are competent to perform any service that may be required

Goods roads and good fences not only ensure successful farming, but indicate that an increased value of the farms will result.

We may feed other nations, but the imports into this country of cheese, potatoes, eggs and butter amount to a large sum Canada still supplies our frontier with cheese and eggs that could be produced in this country, and as plentiful as is our own crop of potatoes Bermuda expects to find a good market here for her early crop

Keep a supply of charcoal where the pigs can help themselves It is important that the charcoal be freshly burned. This may be done by simply allowing it to become heated before being placed in the pig pen

Where the cheapest production of meat is desired a small breed of hogs maturing early will give better results than any of the large breeds The kinds of hogs that will attain 250 to 280 pounds weight in nine months are better than those which will run up to five or six hundred weight, but will require two full years to do it in

Barnyard manure is rich in nitrogen and is admirably adapted to the development of wood, and while the orchard is young should be applied liberally, not only for this purpose, but also for fertilizing such annual crops as may be grown with the greatest profit—depending upon the home market for facilities for shipment.

Scrubbing and whitewashing the dirty walls of the stable will rob it of much of that tang and odor so readily absorbed by the milk. Anything which contributes to the sweetness of the atmosphere of the stable adds to the health and milk productiveness of the confined animals.

Pear blight is not well understood, but is probably produced by an excess of sap It shows itself usually during a hot, sultry, damp season It may show in but a single branch, or in many, and at times the whole tree will seem as if scorched. Even the wood, if cut into, is often found discolored

While the cows are at water cut up your pumpkins into small pieces and place them in the mangers, where they can eat them at their leisure after being tied up Thus they will be of much higher feeding value than when scattered about the yard to be trampled upon, befouled and eaten of in irregular quantities.

A dairy writer says that, while it is true that some thin cows and some very fat cows are long and persistent milkers, yet the rule is that the cow for steady work in milk-giving carries a goodly quantity of fat on her bones, and always looks to be in good, comfortable condition. That is the kind of cow the old dairyman picks out. But it must not be understood by this that more than a small quantity of fat is needed.

Granting the value of intelligent breeding, it is nevertheless true that the laws of heredity do not overpower all other laws. Sorting is a positive necessity in all branches of farming, whether saving seed or grain, growing a herd for beef or for the dairy. Progress is only possible by selection.

Old Rip Van Winkle went up into the Catskill mountains to take a little nap of twenty years or so, and when he wakened, he found that the "cruel war was over" the monthly magazines had "fought it over" the second time and "blown up" all the officers that had participated in it. This much is history, and it is also an historical fact that during the same length of time, Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery had become the most celebrated, as it is the most effective, Liver, Blood and Lung Remedy of the age In purifying the blood and in all manner of pimples blotches, eruptions, and other skin and scalp diseases, scrofulous sores and swellings and kindred ailments, the "Golden Medical Discovery" manifests the most positive curative properties

Every disorder that can be reached through the blood, yields to its purifying qualities Besides, it builds up wholesome flesh and strength, not merely fat like filthy Cod liver oil and its nasty "emulsions" but solid flesh

A scrofulous condition of the blood invites catarrh, bronchitis, and consumption We're all exposed to the germs of consumption grip and malaria—yet only the weak ones suffer When you're weak, tired out and debilitated, or when pimples and blotches appear—heed the warning in time The "Golden Medical Discovery" sets all the organs into healthy action—especially the liver, and that's the point of entrance for these germs Then if the blood be pure, they'll be thrown off There's no risk

CAUTION.—Accept no substitute for the Golden Medical Discovery that may be recommended to be "just as good" It may be better for the dealer because of paying him a better profit, but he is not the one who needs help

The Ethics of Work.

Work has its ethics Of course, that element of society which we know as "The Four Hundred" would never admit the possibility For work, in their estimation, is a badge of inferiority—a daily service which mortals made out of common clay must perform, an evil to be shunned and a misfortune calamitous beyond conception when measured by their standard Therefore, they and the class they represent avoid it as they would the plague and the noisome pestilence. But these idlers are not the only ones who deny and repudiate the dignity of work Perhaps they constitute the minority for labor is the natural condition, as it is the imperative necessity of the vast majority of the human race According to Holy Writ, it was a part of the primal curse Yet out of the obligation imposed upon humanity to provide food and raiment for itself by toil and travail many blessings may be evolved and humanity itself may be uplifted and be made more worthy than if the world were composed entirely of idlers and work were a luxury rather than inexorable obligation

In an excellent article on this subject is the Metaphysical Magazine, Alexander Wilder, commenting upon the strenuous efforts which modern society makes to evade work, says the agonizing inquiry seems to be "What shall we do to be saved from work?" And, therefore he concludes that "our social system is in imminent danger of being honeycombed throughout by this general demoralization" The evidences of demoralization we discover in the anxiety of men to secure occupation in which they are called upon to render the minimum of labor for the maximum of renumeration Thousands of men seek political offices for the reason that the renumeration is oftentimes absurdly large when compared with the nature and amount of work required in return The same spirit leads men to take "short cuts" to riches They are unwilling to go along the slow and toilsome ways their fathers trod They cannot bear the idea of continuous labor Their souls revolt at the idea of years spent in work for which they shall receive no more than a just reward for what they give And so we have forms of gambling in trade, business operations resting upon chance and finally collapse and public confidence almost destroyed And all because the cry of the "end of the century" man is "What shall we do to be saved from work?"

A quaint precept of Zoroaster is quoted by Mr Wilder "He who cultivates the earth with diligence accumulates by his work a more precious store of moral excellence than he would be able to acquire by uttering ten thousand prayers while idle" The reason why is plain enough He has learned the habit of directing his energies to a useful purpose While accumulating for himself he has provided for others He has been taught to expect as his reward only that to which his labor entitles him He has set an example of sturdy self reliance of a cheerful dependence upon his own resources and demonstrated that happiness and labor, so far from being inconsistent are in fact closely linked together Man was put upon this earth to work Not only must he toil for his mere bodily needs but in that grander and nobler undertaking which concerns his future existence he is told that he must "work out his own salvation" In no respect is he to be a drone or a dependent although it is barely possible that the Four Hundred might decline to be saved if their salvation is dependent upon their own work because labor is contrary to their creed

"What shall we do to be saved from work?" Surely this gospel of idleness can never prevail The men whom we honor most are the men who work, and the men who accomplish most the true leaders in all departments of human thought and human endeavor are the workers And their work is not a means to an end, but is the end itself Idleness to the earnest man is torpidity, indolence is death Activity in life and it matters not in what station in life one's activity is exerted, he is happier if employed and he ought also to be more unselfish Antipathy to labor and surrender to indolence is pure and unadulterated selfishness Indolence leads to crime and disinclination to work is at the bottom of many evils "The devil always finds some work for idle hands to do" This is a simple old truth that most of us must learn in childhood but it is the very essence of wisdom The devil will not make much headway with busy people, however and if our work is the end of life if we are faithful in its performance accepting it not grudgingly and in bitterness of spirit, but heartily, realizing that to live is to do, we shall in very truth realize how dependent our happiness is upon our labor, and our cry will be, "What shall we do to be saved from idleness?" —Balto Sun

I didn't get a Watch!

Everything but what he wanted But what he wanted most he didn't get

When you think that a watch is one of the few things to give your boy that will last more than a year or two you'll think it the best present after all

Only put it in a strong handsome case Of course the Fahys gold filled Monarch is best
